Larisa I. Avens, Ph.D.

Research Fishery Biologist
National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration
National Marine Fisheries Service
101 Pivers Island Rd.
Beaufort, NC 28516

Education

Ph.D. in Biology May, 2003 University of North Carolina - Chapel Hill

Dissertation: Homing behavior, navigation, and orientation in juvenile sea

Ph: 252-728-8766

Fax: 252-728-8784

e-mail: Larisa.Avens@noaa.gov turtles.

B.S. in Biology May, 1995 University of Wisconsin - Stevens Point

Aug.- Dec., 1993 Study abroad: Macquarie University,

Sydney, Australia. Study in Fiji, Australia, and New Zealand, with emphasis on the environmental problems of the South Pacific.

Research and Work Experience

2003-present Research Fishery Biologist, National Marine Fisheries Service

Project description: Collection, histological processing, and analysis of sea turtle skeletal elements for skeletochronological research and stable isotope studies to investigate age and growth. In-water sampling of sea turtles to investigate site fidelity, growth, tag retention, and population sex ratios and genetics.

1997-2003 Ph.D. dissertation research, University of North Carolina -

Chapel Hill

Project description: A study of homing behavior of juvenile loggerhead and green sea turtles using laboratory orientation trials, mark-recapture experiments, and radio telemetry, as well as an investigation of the cues used by the turtles to orient and navigate during homing behavior.

1998-2003 Biological Technician and Student Cooperative Research position. National Marine Fisheries Service

Project description: Assisted with large-scale effort to obtain data describing the distribution, abundance, and demography of sea turtles in the inshore waters of North Carolina. Additional experience involved collection and processing of histological samples to age loggerhead and Kemp's ridley sea turtles, aerial surveys to document the distribution of sea turtles and cetaceans, and live capture and radio telemetry of bottlenose dolphins.

1996-1997

Research assistant, University of North Carolina - Chapel Hill Project description: Evaluation of the role of magnetic orientation in the migration of hatchling and adult loggerhead sea turtles (Caretta caretta). Assessment of hatchling loggerhead and hatchling green (Chelonia mydas) sea turtle responses to rotational displacements in order to examine mechanisms used by the turtles to counteract turbulence during their offshore migrations.

1994 & 1995 (May – September) Biology Technician, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Cape Island, Cape Romain National Wildlife Refuge, SC Project description: Population management and habitat restoration for South Carolina's largest nesting population of loggerhead (Caretta caretta) sea turtles and participation in the Sea Turtle Salvage and Stranding Network.

Teaching Experience

1995-1997

Teaching Assistant, University of North Carolina - Chapel Hill Biology Department

Physiology: (September, 1997 – May, 2000) Conducted laboratory classes involving experimental study of physiology. Also used BIOPAC physiology software to non-invasively investigate skeletal and cardiac muscle function and respiration in students. Cell & Developmental Biology: (September, 1995 - May, 1997) Conducted recitation sections involving lectures on the subject material, demonstrations, and reviews of information covered during the main lectures.

Grants

June, 2001	Recipient of PADI AWARE Foundation grant.
June, 2000, 2001	Recipient of the Lerner-Gray Fund for Marine Research (American Museum of Natural History)
June, 2000	Recipient of Sigma Xi grant in aid of research
May, 1998, 1999, 2000	Recipient of PADI Foundation grant
May, 1997, 2000, 2002	Recipient of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill H.V. Wilson Scholarship to promote marine research

Awards & Activities

2002 & 2004	Served as reviewer for Fishery Bulletin, Oryx, and Marine Ecology Progress Series
2002	Runner-up award for best student oral presentation; 22 nd International Symposium on Sea Turtle Biology and Conservation, Miami, Florida.
2001-2004	Member of Sigma Xi, the Scientific Research Society
1999	Runner-up award for best student poster presentation; 19th International Symposium on Sea Turtle Biology and Conservation, South Padre Island, Texas
1997	Runner-up award for best student poster presentation; 17th International Symposium on Sea Turtle Biology and Conservation, Orlando, Florida
1997-1998	Secretary, Biology Graduate Student Association (BGSA); University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill
1995	Recipient of the 'Fellowship for the Advancement of Women and Minorities in Science"; University of North Carolina - Chapel Hill
